

Mersouga - Missor

After a good rest afternoon it was the sad day as the competitors had to leave the sands of Mersouga and start the long journey back towards the port of Nador. Today's stage started with a last ride through the dunes before some wide open piste on the way to the Col de Erfoud. Some of the riders found that the navigation was tricky to find the right pass.

For the Profi Motorcycles A secret check was hidden on the side of a hill know as Alex's hill as he found the track. Some of the riders on the larger bikes found the climb very tricky and looked very hot by the time they reached the top of the hill.

Again the special of the day had some tricky navigation as the competitors passed through the valley with no name a deep sided gorge with a sandy base.

The end of the stage was in the familiar hotel which the rally used 3 days ago on the way to the desert.

After 6 days of riding everything and everyone is starting to look a little tired and they are awaiting the last day in Morocco tomorrow.
